

WE NEED MORE LAW

Applying Directly to the State Charitable Institutions.

A BIG CONVENTION TO MEET

In This City Next Summer to Discuss the Question from All Standpoints.

State Senator M. A. Householder who presides over the meetings of the state board of charities in the absence of Mrs. Mary E. Lease, complimented Judge Hazen on his recent action in regard to the continuation of boys to the reform school.

To a STATE JOURNAL reporter Senator Householder said: "I am glad Judge Hazen has given this decision just as he did, as it will enable us to have some new laws enacted for the government of all the state charitable institutions."

"When the Osgoodomie asylum was built, a law was enacted providing for its management. When the Deaf and Dumb Institute at Olathe was built another law was passed providing for its management, and so it was with all our charitable institutions."

"We have a dozen different laws on the statute books which should be revised and merged into one law covering the management of all these institutions. An effort has been made several times to have these laws amended, but each time some person would imagine that some other person had an ax to grind and the objections were so strong against amending with the laws that the whole matter was always dropped."

Judge Hazen no doubt gave a correct interpretation of that law when he said it was unconstitutional, but in giving this decision he gave notice that he would hear more habeas corpus causes looking to the release of boys from the reform school and this notice was also a notice to other judges not to interfere with the workings of the institution until the supreme court has passed on a similar case which is now pending before the court and which must take its regular place on the calendar.

"My idea is that before the supreme court takes any action on this matter, we will have arrangements made for a charitable convention looking to a revision of all the laws governing our charitable institutions."

"I have been working on this law for some time and from the laws governing the charitable institutions in other states I am preparing what I think will be a law, which will fully cover our needs. I have talked with Governor LeWelling about this and it is now the plan for the governor to call, sometime next summer, a convention of the officers of the different charitable institutions in the state together with all persons interested in charity associations for the purpose of recommending the adoption of a new law by the next legislature."

"This law I am now working on will be submitted to this convention and of course will be subject to amendment and revision. Acting in this way we can get the proper laws for the management of our institutions enacted."

WITH THE JOURNAL'S HELP.

Mrs. Thorpe Tells of the Good Accomplished in Several Instances.

Mrs. L. E. Thorpe, the police matron, writes to the JOURNAL:

"The free lunch you allowed me last week in behalf of a poor woman needing work, brought eleven applicants, and secured work for seven persons. Also the item in regard to the needy man, brought him a purse of $5.25 from the cooks of the hotel. Thorpe, also work for some time since."

Mrs. Thorpe adds:

"Owens & Baker, coal dealers between Seventh and Eighth on the Santa Fe tracks, agree to give to the needy one-half cent of coal out of every car load sold."

Mrs. Thorpe also adds an item:

"There is a dairy baby on Eighth, and one on Lincoln street. What milk man, or other person, could kindly spare them a pint of milk each day? Inquire for their residence at 115 West Fifth."

STOLE A GOLD WATCH.

Gold in a Piece of Wood Where a Police Officer Found It.

Nathan Williams, a colored man, went into a restaurant run by Mrs. Julia A. Scales at the corner of First and Madison streets to get something to eat last night. While undressed, he went back into Mrs. Scales' room and finding her $30 gold watch lying on a table put it in his pocket. Mrs. Scales missed her watch after he left and notified Officer Hieke, who caught Williams at his home 228 Quincy street and took him to the city prison.

After he got there he pleaded guilty and Sergeant Donavan went to his home and found the watch thrown in a pile of wood in the corner of a room. He is charged with grand larceny and will be tried in the district court.

MRS. THORPE'S WORK.

Cases of Destitution That Are Not in the City Limits.

Mrs. Thorpe has some cases of destitution in charge outside of the city limits which are not taken care of by the Associated Charities, and while they have united their efforts in helping the poor of the city, Mrs. Thorpe will herself personally take care of all such cases and wishes that any one desirous of giving anything in this direction will leave it at the police station, where it will receive proper attention.

The state treasurer's department sent her $3 which she used to good advantage. Rev. A. S. Entwistle sent her a supply of clothing. Mrs. Thorpe says she has received a great many supplies from outside the city limits and she thinks any cases of destitution outside are deserving of attention.

Government Agent Heiskell Investigates the Clyde Matrix Escape.

J. Monroe Heiskell, a special examiner of the department of justice, has been in Topeka several weeks looking over the records of the federal offices located in Topeka. He found everything to his satisfaction and leaves shortly for the western Missouri district.

Mr. Heiskell among other cases investigated the escape from the Wichita jail of Murderer Clyde Matrix. He came to the conclusion that Jailer Burroughs was responsible for the escape only through carelessness, and not from any criminal connection with the plot to escape. He left him off with a severe reprimand.

Mr. Heiskell has in his possession the key with which Matrix made his escape and also the tile and the saw made from an ordinary table knife.

The key is a wooden one very cleverly whittled out to fit the lock of the big jail door. The impression is said to have been made with soap.
